

Since 2016 August 15 within a project called "Youth voices for change and development" in Armenian schools participating in this project, students of Armenian schools who are taking part in this project are organizing meetings and discussions with the project stakeholders of schools.

Children are getting ready with great enthusiasm and expectstions for the start of the project. Each participant of the project organizes a meeting in his school, and in the course of it pupils are generally presented the project idea designed with Georgian colleague school and as a result of discussions ideas are collected about effective planning and actualizing of Armenian-Georgian co-operative projects.

Pupils have great expectations from the small projects which have to be done, and they hope they will acquire the desired results and between frontier countries will be good relationships which will serve as a great precedent for intercommunity further project designing and actualizing.

"Youth voices for change and development" is being organized by "Society of democratic women of Marneul" NGO, "Civitas Georgia" NGO, and by "Centre for community support and mobilazation" with the support of the European Union.
